This soup is thought to have been created in honour of Princess Marguerite de Valois (1553-1615), daughter of Henry II and Catherina de Medici. She adored this unusual soup, which is made from both fowl stock and mushroom stock.

As Catholicism reigned supreme in the french court, a Lenten version was made without fowl or dairy, but with carp, pike, onions and cloves

- combinations of beer and jenever 7,50
De Vijf Jenever of Wynand Fockink can be combined with Zatte tripel from Brouwerij 't IJ. The Five Jenever is aged at least 5 years in French and American oak, the scent is vanilla-sweet, complex with clear wood tones and a taste of raisin. These flavors harmonize with the grain flavor and dry aftertaste of the Zatte tripel.

Roggejenever (rye jenever) of Wynand Fockink can be combined with the Haring Arie (IPA) of brewery Penose. Rye is an old grain variety and gives this jenever its notes of rye malt with a sweet hint and a bit of juniper taste. Because the IPA of Penose is also made with rye, these sour flavors come together nicely.

sea fever

I must go down to the seas again,

to the lonely sea and the sky,

And all I ask is a tall ship

and a star to steer her by;

And the wheel's kick and the wind's song

and the white sail's shaking,

And a grey mist on the sea's face,

and a grey dawn breaking.

I must go down to the seas again,

for the call of the running tide

Is a wild call and a clear call

that may not be denied;

And all I ask is a windy day

with the white clouds flying,

And the flung spray and the blown spume,

and the sea-gulls crying.

I must go down to the seas again,

to the vagrant gypsy life,

To the gull's way and the whale's way

where the wind's like a whetted knife;

And all I ask is a merry yarn

from a laughing fellow-rover,

And quiet sleep and a sweet dream

when the long trick's over.

sea fever liqueur

5,00

Based on this poem by John Masefield (Dutch translation by Jacob Slauerhof), Wynand Fockick created the Sea fever liqueur exclusively for The National Maritime Museum. Its base is a Superior jenever, enriched with galangal root, laos root, ginger, mace and lemon juice.
