group visit

The collection of The National Maritime Museum is one of the largest and most notable maritime collections in the world with approximately 400.000 objects, including paintings, ship models, navigation instruments, and maps of the world. Discover 500 years of Dutch Maritime history as well as its strong links to today's society and the society of the future.

museum visit

The National Maritime Museum offers tours and activities for all ages. An enthusiastic museum guide can tell you everything about the building, the exhibitions or for instance the ships. Discover shipping from past centuries, the object exhibitions, or visit the East Indiaman 'Amsterdam', where you can experience what living on a ship was like. The costs for a tour are €75,00 for the museum guide per hour, this price is excluding the museum tickets per person. One guide can take groups up to a maximum of 15 persons. A museum visit in game-form or in combination with a workshop is possible as well. We are happy to look at the different possibilities with you.

Celebrate your child's birthday in The National Maritime Museum with an exciting tour in the museum or on the East Indiaman 'Amsterdam' and decorate your own cupcake or celebrate with a pirate cake! 'The Tale of the Whale' is a fascinating exhibition revolving around the whale trade and makes sure kids will look from different perspectives to this clever mammal. Is it a monster, a good meal, or a majestic animal in need of our protection? Inside a life sized whale's mouth you will discover what a whale smells like, hear its heartbeat and feel its skin. Or jump aboard the East Indiaman 'Amsterdam'. Take a peek in the captain's cabin, the galley and the crew quarters. Discover how sailors lived and worked in the 17th Century. Visit the sailors' sleeping quarters. Find out what meals were served on board. And what happened to sailors who became ill or broke the rules?
